Chun Wo has been rooted in Hong Kong since 1968. In the early days, it mainly engaged in building projects for the government and private developers. In the '70s and '80s, Chun Wo proliferated together with Hong Kong. Apart from marine construction, waterworks, and site formation projects, Chun Wo expanded its business scope to cover also railway related construction and civil engineering projects. By the '90s, it became one of the few local contractors to hold five types of registration and qualification to work on public projects. And, at the same time, it also took on building construction and civil engineering projects in mainland China, Macau and Taiwan. In 2016, Chun Wo acquired the construction engineering consultancy firm "R.J. Crocker Consultants Pte.
